Prevalence the paper prevalence of The paper depicts the enforcement of fear-based laws in response to the COVID-19 pandemic in Indonesia. There are some strengths and areas for improvement to consider:

1. While the abstract provides an overall understanding of your research , it could benefit from a bit more specificity regarding the key findings or insights . What are the main conclusions or recommendations from your study?
2. In the introduction , you reference previous studies and publications , which is important for establishing the context of your research . However , you should provide specific citations (author names and publication years) to support these references . This adds credibility to your work and allows readers to explore related studies.
3. While you provide a good description of the research methods used , it would be helpful to provide more specific details about how you conducted your research , such as data collection techniques and how data was analyzed . This would give readers a better understanding of your study's process.
4. While you mention using both primary and secondary data sources , you could provide more information about how you collected primary data. For example, did you conduct interviews , surveys, or observations? Clarifying this aspect would enhance the transparency of your research process.
5. The recommendations are generally well-structured and provide thoughtful guidance for addressing the issues raised in your study. However , it could be beneficial to add specific details about how each recommendation can be implemented or elaborated upon .

For example , in Recommendation 5, you could mention specific steps or initiatives that could be taken to strengthen the healthcare system . Overall , your recommendations are sensible , and your research implications provide a good foundation for future studies . Enhancing the specificity of your recommendations , providing a clearer rationale for prioritization , and offering more details on practical implications would strengthen the impact of your research.

Decision: Major revisions required

The study provides a solid foundation for your research . The methodology and literature review sections provide comprehensive insights into the approach , sources , and background information relevant to the study. However, here are some points to consider for improvement:

1. You mention the limited existing literature on these matters in the Indonesian context . It would be beneficial to specify what exactly is lacking in the literature and how your research aims to fill this gap. What are the unique contributions of your study?
2. You mention using a qualitative research approach and the inductive research technique but don't provide a strong justification for these choices . It would be beneficial to explain why qualitative research was chosen and how it's the most appropriate method for addressing your research questions.
3. The literature review section covers various countries ' responses to the COVID-19 pandemic and their legal frameworks . It would be helpful to organize this section more clearly , possibly by categorizing the responses into sections or themes . This would make it easier for readers to follow the discussion.
4. The "Findings " section starts by discussing the Indonesian government 's initial response to the pandemic . While it provides valuable context , consider transitioning more smoothly into the discussion of the emergency laws and their application.
5. It's valuable that you discuss both the theoretical and practical implications of your research . However , the practical implications could be further elaborated . How can these findings and recommendations be practically applied by policymakers , legal experts, or the healthcare system?

Response to Reviewers

Sr. No.	Reviewer's Comment	Response
	The revised version is very promising. However, please make these minor changes to enhance the quality of the manuscript further.	Many thanks, Respected Reviewer, for your kind appreciation.
1	While you state the objective of your study, it would be helpful to clearly outline any hypotheses you intend to test or specific research questions you aim to answer. This can help guide your readers through your study's focus.	Many thanks for your kind comments. Done as suggested. Please see pages 4-5
2	When referring to previous studies and sources that informed your research approach, consider including specific citations to academic publications. This adds credibility and helps readers locate the sources you've consulted.	Many thanks for your kind comments. Done as suggested. Please see pages 7-15
3	The introduction briefly touches on various aspects, from law enforcement to public psychology and governmental initiatives. It might be helpful to provide a more structured overview of the key sections or themes that your study will explore.	Many thanks for your kind comments. Done as suggested. Please see pages 2-3, and 6
